BRT performers needed

Bisbee Repertory Theatre will be holding auditions for its upcoming production of "Once Upon a Mattress" Saturday and Sunday. They are looking for actors who sing, a couple who needn't sing and eight strong dancers to dance the hilarious "Spanish Panic."

Singers should be able to perform a capella and dancers will learn steps from the "Spanish Panic," and everyone will read from the script. A copy of the script is available to read at the Copper Queen Library. Auditions will be held at Bisbee Rep, 94 Main Street at 1 p.m. Saturday and at 11 a.m. Sunday. For more information, call BRT at 432-3786.

"First Night" opens Friday

"First Night" by Jack Neary is a charming and witty romantic comedy starring Carlene Ballard and Lugh, both talented Bisbee Repertory Theatre veterans.

The show is set in a video store shortly before midnight on New Year's Eve. Ballard plays Meredith O'Connor, a possibly soon-to-be-ex-nun who returns to her hometown to try to revive a momentary relationship begun 20 years ago with Danny Fleming.

Danny, a movie geek played by Lugh, hasn't gone far from home and treasures his quiet times at the video store. In the moments before the New Year, they reminisce, challenge each other, and might or might not walk off into a romantic cinematic future.

"First Night" will open Friday at 7:30 p.m. Performances continue in repertory with "A Christmas Carol" Dec. 8, 14, 22, 28 and 29 with a special performance on New Year's Eve at 7:30 p.m. Matinees are Sunday and Dec. 16 at 3 p.m.

Advance tickets are $10 at Atalanta's Music & Books, the Chamber of Commerce in Bisbee and Sierra Vista, the Oscar Yrun Community Center, Fort Huachuca's MWR Box Office and at the Tombstone Pharmacy. Tickets are $12 at the door for adults and $5 for students through college. Group rates are available. For more information, call 432-3786.

Texas magazine subscriptions

Active-duty servicemembers whose home of record is Texas, or those currently stationed in Texas are eligible to receive a subscription to Texas Fish & Game magazine for just a penny. In light of recent national events, the magazine staff has decided to spend well over $200,000 in support of active-duty military personnel who happen to be from or are stationed in Texas. The magazine is offering 10,000 annual subscriptions for just a penny each. Texas Fish & Game is the largest outdoor magazine in the state of Texas and the second largest regional outdoor magazine in the nation. Individuals can call 1 (800) 725-1134 and customer service representatives can sign people up over the phone or interested people can contact Duane Hruzek, circulation director, directly at dhruzek@fishgame.com.

MI T-shirt exchange

New MI Heritage Run T-shirts have been ordered to replace the misspelled ones. Those who purchased a MI Heritage Run T-shirt for the 2001 MI Heritage Run, should call Capt. Steve Sin or 1st Sgt. Scott Quick at 533-3993 or 533-2089 to coordinate an exchange. This is an one-for-one exchange.

About 41 soldiers and two family members from the 504th Signal Battalion joined a nationwide effort to carry the flag across the United States to show America's resolve.

The flag was flown over Iraq in the cockpit of an F-16 in support of Operation Southern Watch on Oct. 2. The flag was carried from Boston to Los Angeles and arrived there on Veteran's Day. The flag began its journey Oct. 11.

Employees from American Airlines, United Airlines, military service members and federal employees joined together for the event to benefit selected charities supporting families from the terrorist attacks.

The signal soldiers, 40 from the 269th Signal Company and one from Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 504th Sig. Bn., carried the flag for an 18.5-mile stretch from Miami, Ariz. to Superior, Ariz. During the run, the soldiers chanted USA as they passed through the Queen Creek Tunnel and ran the final seven miles together. They began their journey at 2 p.m. Nov. 7 and handed the flag off at 7 p.m. that same day.

Sgt. 1st Class Robert Rose (carrying American flag) from the 269th Sig. Co., 504th Sig. Bn., leads the group of runners along the route Nov. 7 during the unit's 18.5-mile leg in the National Flag Run.

Ski until you're blue - Rocky Mountain Blue

By 2nd Lt. Virgil Magee
 Air Force Space Command News Service

Servicemembers and government employees looking to get away from their day-in, day-out routine have a new option when it comes to snow-filled recreation.

The Air Force's newest recreational venture, Rocky Mountain Blue, opened here recently and gives Department of Defense employees the opportunity to frolic through the snowcapped scenic mountains of Colorado at greatly reduced costs.

RMB, a partnership between Air Force Space Command, the Air Force Academy and Keystone Resorts, is an initiative in which the resort offers a variety of discounts to active-duty, reserve, guard, retiree, DoD civilian and non-appropriated funds civilians.

The brainchild of Gen. Ed Eberhart, commander of Air Force Space Command, RMB is the first step in determining if there is a market for a government-owned resort in the area. That decision will be made in two or three years.

In all, Keystone features 1,749 acres of terrain served by 22 ski lifts, including two high-speed, six-passenger gondolas and three high-speed, four-passenger chairlifts.

Located just 90 minutes west of Denver, the Rocky Mountain Blue programs offers servicemembers many activities such as skiing, horseback riding, mountain biking, hiking, ice-skating, shopping and golf.

"There are a lot of ski resorts in the area, but Keystone offers a wide variety of indoor and outdoor activities and they were happy to have us," said Col. Dave Estill, Air Force Space Command director of services. "This is a good value for our members to have a good time in the Colorado outdoors."

Keystone includes three interconnected mountains with groomed terrain set to test skiers and snowboarders of all levels and abilities. The premier trail "North Peak" features several steep plunges that may be especially attractive to the more advanced skier. For the beginner, there are many classes, starting with one for three-year-olds, to teach ski basics.

Three lifts serve 288 acres of terrain until 8 p.m.

Visitors can also skate all day and evening on the five-acre Keystone Lake, the largest outdoor-maintained ice rink in the country.

Finally, for those who don't wish to indulge in the snow sports, horse-drawn sleighs and stagecoaches can be reserved for a ride through the Snake River Valley to an authentic 1860s Old West cabin, where cowboys cook mouthwatering dinners over a campfire.

Additional information on Rocky Mountain Blue can be found on the Internet at <http://rockymountainblue.com>.

Move over Mexican food... Lil' Skeeters barbecue hits Fort Huachuca!

MWR Release

Lil' Skeeters BBQ, one of the Army's popular branded theme restaurants, opened for business on November 1st bringing their rib-tickling menu to the soldiers and families on Fort Huachuca and the only BBQ restaurant to the Sierra Vista, AZ area.

On the first full day of business, lines were out the door for lunch and the day ended with almost $2,500 in sales—a gangbuster day for a small quick-service operation with 26 tables.

More than 400 guests attended the Grand Opening event and sampled not only the BBQ specials...but the burgers Philly sandwiches, hot dogs, chili, appetizers and the rest of the Lil' Skeeters menu. Before the ribbon cutting, COL Boardman, Garrison Commander, praised the barbeque and encouraged the Fort Huachuca community to bring their families and enjoy the food and the service.

Lil' Skeeters features its own proprietary BBQ sauce that came from a recipe developed at Fort Campbell, KY. However, the Lil' Skeeter's story goes something like this...

"This 'ere sauce was konkected by Aunt Milly, Uncle Bubba, Cousin Skeeter and a Georgia raccoon. A damg raccoon had crawled into the pantry and rearranged Aunt Milly's spices al' over the floor. Bout that time, Aunt Milly com thru the door carrin' a hunk of beef. That danged raccoon run up her skirt...don't know who was skferred more. Danged if she din't drop that meat smack dad in the middle of that mess of spices...

There's more to the story...but you'll have to stop by a Lil' Skeeters restaurant to read it. The sauce comes in Original and Hot...the hot being "hotter 'n a mouth full of fire ants in August."

Lil Skeeters at Fort Huachuca is located in a stand-alone building close to Thunderbird Village in "downtown" Fort Huachuca. It is one of only two MWR food outlets on post that serve dinner. It serves a post population of 12,000. Dan Valle, Director, MWR, said he expects Lil Skeeters to continue to be very popular and successful since it is open for both lunch and DINNER.

You can visit a Lil' Skeeters restaurant on Fort Huachuca, located across from Barnes Field House. Hours are Mon. through Thurs. 11 a.m.-1:30 for lunch and 3:30 p.m.-7:30 p.m. for dinner; Fri. 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. for lunch and 3:30 p.m.-9 p.m. for dinner; Sat. 11 a.m.-9 p.m. for lunch and dinner; Sun. 11 a.m.-6 p.m. for lunch and dinner.

Arizona Game & Fish Department's Wildlife News

Rory Aikens Wildlife News

The Arizona Game and Fish Commission will be considering a draft of the "Guidelines and Recommendations for the 2002-2003 Hunting Seasons" that will be used to gather public input during the hunt meetings across the state starting in January.

The Game and Fish Commission is meeting Dec. 7 and 8 in the Wildlife Building at the Arizona State Fairgrounds on 19th Avenue and McDowell Road.

Game Branch Chief Tice Supplee explained that the draft guidelines and recommendations for the hunting seasons are used by wildlife managers to prepare their annual recommendations for next year's hunts.

Additionally, Supplee said, specific direction from the Arizona Game and Fish Commission is incorporated into the guidelines, such as allocating 2.5 percent of the Antelope general season and muzzleloader season permits to juniors-only hunts.

At this point in the process, she said, department wildlife managers are provided the opportunity to recommend changes to the hunting structures that differ from previous year hunts.

"Once the commission approves the guidelines, the document will be posted on the Arizona Game and Fish Department's Internet Home Page at www.azgfd.com <<http://www.azgfd.com>> and copies will also be distributed to more than 800 individuals through direct mailings," she said.

The guidelines will also be distributed at public meetings in January and February at 10 or more locations around the state. More than 500 people attended such meetings last year. Public comments will be accepted by letter and e-mail through March 4, 2002.

The public comments collected during this process will be provided to the department's six regional offices for consideration when they are preparing final hunt recommendation packages. The final recommendations will come before the Game and Fish Commission at its April 13 meeting in Phoenix for consideration.

"We always get people waiting for the tail-end of the process - the commission meeting in April - to give us their great ideas. Our hunt package is now so complex that by April, we don't have a lot of flexibility for making major changes. The best place for new ideas is at the front end of the process in January and February," Supplee said.

She added that over the years, hunters have come up with a lot of terrific ideas that have become reality.

Information sought in the deaths of two Mexican gray wolves

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has posted a reward for information leading to the apprehension of the individual or individuals responsible for the recent deaths of two Mexican gray wolves.

Within 10 days, two wolves were found dead in Arizona. Agents have sent the carcasses to a forensics laboratory for necropsy and are awaiting the results.

On Nov. 15, wolf number 169 was found dead near Maverick Lookout on the White Mountain Apache Reservation. She was the Lupine pack's alpha female.

The White Mountain Apache-Wildlife & Outdoor Division's game rangers are cooperating with the Service in the investigation according to the White Mountain Apache Tribe-Mexican Wolf Management Plan.

A yearling female wolf, number 645, was found dead on Nov. 5 near Forest Road 117, south of Highway 60, in the Greens Peak area near Vernon on the Apache National Forest.

The Service is offering a reward of up to $10,000 for information and would like to talk to anyone who was in the area or may have information regarding either of the deaths.

Individuals with information they believe may be helpful should call one of these three agencies: Service special agents in Mesa at (480) 835-8289, in Pinetop at (928) 367-5689, the White Mountain Apache Tribe at (928) 338-1023 and (928) 338-4385, or Arizona Game and Fish Operation Game Thief at 1-800-352-0700.

Killing a Mexican gray wolf is a violation of the federal Endangered Species Act and can invoke criminal penalties up to $25,000 and/or six months in jail or a civil penalty of up to $25,000.

Just weeks before her death, the Lupine female number 169 had begun making dispersal movements to the west, possibly in search of a mate. She was born in 1994 at the Wild Canid Survival and Research Center in Missouri and moved to the Ladder Ranch captive breeding facility in New Mexico in 1999. She was paired with the alpha male number 480, born at the Phoenix Zoo in 1996. The pair, their four yearlings and three pups were released in the Bear Wallow area of the Apache Sitgreaves National Forest in Arizona on June 20, 2001. Her matedied the next month of snakebite and one yearling male died after being hit by a car in September. Three of the pack members continue to be tracked with radio collars. The status of the three uncollared pups is unknown.

Wolf number 645 was born on May 15, 2000, at Sevilleta National Wildlife Refuge in New Mexico and released into the wild on Jan. 11, 2001, in Arizona with the Saddle Pack. She was considered a valuable member of her pack.

Information on Mexican gray wolves is on the Internet at <http://mexicanwolf.fws.gov>.

12 more condors come to Arizona

Twelve California condors was transported to a new home on public land on Arizona's Vermilion Cliffs, near the Grand Canyon recently

Eleven of the condors hatched this year at The Peregrine Fund's breeding facility in Boise, Idaho; the other is a female that hatched in 1999 and was brought back into captivity on April 11, 2000 due to her interaction with humans. Biologists have been observing this condor in captivity for over a year and a half and now feel that she is ready to be re-released.

The condors will be transported from Boise to Page, Arizona on a U.S. Forest Service fire plane being provided by the Bureau of Land Management.

Release is expected in early 2002, after the condors have acclimated to their new surroundings. This release will increase the population of California Condors in the Grand Canyon area from 25 to 37.

"There are now 12 condors in Arizona that are old enough to pair up," stated Dr. William A. Burnham, president of The Peregrine Fund. "Since an egg was laid by a pair last year, we feel that we are on the brink of condors breeding in the wild. Once this occurs, it would be the first condor reproduced in the wild since 1986 and would be further confirmation that the recovery effort is on track," finished Burnham.

The historic Arizona release is a joint project between The Peregrine Fund, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Land Management, Arizona Game and Fish Department, National Park Service, Coalition of Resources and Economics, and numerous other partners.

The Peregrine Fund, a non-profit conservation organization headquartered in Boise is largely funding and conducting the release; BLM and NPS are managing the habitat; USFWS is responsible for the overall recovery of the species; and the Arizona Game and Fish Department is responsible for all wildlife in Arizona. Regular updates from the field are being provided by biologists on The Peregrine Fund's home page <http://www.peregrinefund.org>.

California condors are being released in Arizona as a "nonessential experimental population" under section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. This experimental designation allows for condor reintroduction in the area without impacting current or future land uses or planning (except on National Park Service land where they are protected as a threatened species). This authority has been described further in an innovative implementation agreement between the Service and local governments.

"We've enjoyed meeting with local citizens and officials and federal land managers to better understand their concerns regarding management of the condors and how the program may be affecting their communities," said Jeff Humphrey, the Service's Condor reintroduction coordinator. Input from the conservation and scientific communities has also been solicited. "We are anxious to receive input from a variety of perspectives so that we can refine our recovery efforts and strengthen public acceptance of the condor recovery effort."

There are currently 183 California Condors in the world, 57 in the wild in California and Arizona and 126 in captive breeding facilities

Lt. Gen. Doug Brown, commander of the U.S. Army Special Operations Command, meets Redskins Defensive End Marco Coleman.

Soldiers honored at football game

Staff Sgt. Amanda Glenn Army News Service

The Washington Redskins showed their appreciation for soldiers Nov. 3 during a home game in which they beat the Seattle Seahawks 27-14.

More than 30 U.S. Army Special Operations Command soldiers participated in the Redskin's Military Appreciation Day.

Lt. Gen. Doug Brown, USASOC commander, and Command Sgt. Maj. Richard Efrid of USASOC were at center field for the game-starting coin toss. With a large smile on his face, Brown not only handed off the coin for the toss, he shook hands with the players. Meanwhile, from the stands, soldiers from throughout USASOC cheered, clapped and enjoyed the game.

Prior to the kickoff and after the game ended, fans examined the Ranger Special Operations Vehicle, the M-H6 Little Bird and other equipment.

As part of the festivities, rangers from Company A, 1st Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, Hunter Army Air Field, Ga.; soldiers from the 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment (Abn.), Fort Campbell, Ky.; Special Forces soldiers from Company C, 1st Battalion, 7th Special Forces Group (Airborne); and a soldier from 9th Psychological Operations Battalion, 4th Psychological Operations Group from Fort Bragg, N.C., set up equipment at the gates for Redskins fans to enjoy.

Throughout the day, said Master Sgt. Roberto Torres, Special Forces team sergeant, people came up to shake his hand and thank him for being in the Army.

"They thanked me for serving and told me we were doing a great job. I really enjoyed this," said Torres.

Sgt. Quoc Chiem, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 528th Special Operations Support Battalion (Airborne), said he had a great time at the game. This was the second time he attended a professional football game.

"The game was pretty good, but what I really liked was how people kept coming up to me to shake my hand and thank me for serving. A retired chief warrant officer shook my hand and then bought my lunch. It was great," Chiem said.

Third annual Fort Huachuca Army-Navy flag football game scheduled

Tanja M. Linton Media Relations Officer

A long-standing intra-service rivalry gets a dash of local flavor as Army takes on Navy in the third annual Fort Huachuca Army-Navy flag football game Nov. 30 at 4:30 p.m. on Bujalski Field here.

The 102nd playing of the Army-Navy football game kicks off at 11:45 a.m. (EST), Dec. 1, at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia and will be broadcast on CBS.

More than a thousand Fort Huachuca service members watched last year as Army beat Navy, in the second flag football game here.

In keeping with a bet, Navy and Marine Corps officials escorted the Army mascot on a victory lap around the field. The Army mule has been working out intensively and is ready for this year's victory lap. Sources close to the Army team say the Navy goat is guaranteed another year of rest.

Bets are a long-standing tradition associated with the Army-Navy game. Both the Army Emergency Relief Fund and the Navy/

Marine Corps Relief Society were created in 1903 as the result of a bet on the Army-Navy game.

Spectators can purchase tickets for the opportunity to take part in a half-time drawing. The fan with the winning ticket gets a chance to kick a field goal from the 25-yard line.

A successful kick garners the winner half of the ticket proceeds, and the other half is donated both services' relief agencies. A missed kick means the full amount goes to the relief agencies. Tickets for the drawing can be purchased at the game.

Donations will be taken at the gate to benefit both relief funds, and spectators are asked to bring canned goods, which will be collected at half-time, to benefit local food banks.

Units from the Army, Marine Corps and Navy will man booths selling food and hot and cold beverages.

Fans of both services are invited to come out and cheer on their team. The game is free and open to the public.

112th Military Intelligence Brigade conducts its first Crazy Hat Run

Capt. Ian M. Howard S1, 112th MI Brigade

On Nov. 21, the 112th Military Intelligence Brigade conducted its first annual Crazy Hat run.

The run was established as a means to develop unit cohesion as well as get the soldiers of the 112th revved up for the Holidays.

The run started at 6:20 a.m. at Apache flats. Lt. Col. Eileen Ahearn lead the way with her Dr. Zuess candy caned sock type of hat.

Each battalion within the 112th had its own flavor. The 306th which is commanded by Lt. Col. D.J. Reyes, had some very colorful participants.

His battalion had just about every type of theme hat from cowboy hats to a combination hat and shower wrap worn by several unnamed soldiers. Not to be out done, 304th MI Bn. had some crazy hat-wearers as well as they had every thing from a Taco Bell shower cap to a Marge Simpson pink hairdo hat worn by an Officers Basic Course student.

The Noncommissioned Officer Academy stood strong as they came dressed as master fitness soldiers dressed in the standard physical fitness gear. The were led by the NCOA commandant Command Sgt. Maj. Charles Goodman.

The run culminated with a presentation of a reenlistment certificate presented to Staff Sgt. David Mahoney of Company B, 304th MI Bn.
