ICW wrestlers body slam Barnes Field

BY SPC.

SCOUT STAFF

The raucous crowd was barking up a storm as the Dog Faced Gremlin entered the wrestling arena Saturday night at the International Championship Wrestling Superstars extravaganza at Barnes Field House.

The bleachers strained under the heavy pounding of hundreds of feet as the roar grew into a din of impenetrable noise.

The fans witnessed the mind blowing entrance of wrestling legend Rick Steiner, aka, the Dog Faced Gremlin.

Steiner looked like a motorcycle gang member from hell, a tattooed and muscular 270 pounds, as he approached the ring for the night's final and featured match against GQ Gallo.

His eyes were wrapped in his trademark sunglasses; his dark and dirty goatee surrounded and framed his menacing grin.

He wore a red bandana on his head; a black dog collar with silver spikes around his neck; a black leather jacket with a huge dog on it and fire engine red wrestling tights that had 'DFG' on the side and 'Bite Me' stitched on the back.

Steiner is a large, intelligent man and a living legend, who loves his fans. He paid them back with an autograph session at the Main Post Exchange two hours before he got into character at BFH.

"I started wrestling professionally in 1986," Steiner said. "I had wrestled in high school and college, the University of Michigan. Some Olympic and national champions, who did it professionally, trained with us at college. They introduced me to the sport."

Steiner has wrestled on the biggest stages the wrestling world can offer, including Wrestlemania.

"I've wrestled with [Lex] Luger and Sting," Steiner said.

One of his biggest thrills was, "when I got to team up with my brother and wrestle as the Steiner brother tag team. To do something you love with your family member is the highlight of my career, being in the ring with my brother," Steiner said.

"I enjoy coming on bases. I've been to Okinawa," Steiner said. "I always enjoy it. Eight years ago we went to Fort Bragg."

Steiner's father was a Marine, he has buddies in the military, and he loves doing shows that help to support the troops.

"Those guys are the true heroes," Steiner said. "I get to do my character in front of a crowd. They're out there in front of the whole world.

They're out there keeping the peace and freedom. They are the real superstars. They are sacrificing time with their families to make sure I can raise my family with freedom."

The throngs in attendance were a mixture of kids and adults who acted like kids, but all in all a good fun-loving turnout for the Morale, Welfare and Recreation sponsored event.

Before Steiner's win over GQ Gallo in the finale, the fans were treated to a potpourri of thrilling professional wrestling matches during the show that included several one-on-one matches; a woman-on-woman match, and a tag-team match.

The second to last match of the night had another living legend, former World Wrestling Entertainment Intercontinental Champion the Honky Tonk Man.

"It's great. I've done a lot of these shows," the Honky Tonk Man said, before the show.

Marine/Navy detachment sinks Co. A 305th

BY SPC. MATTHEW E. CHLOSTA
SCOUT STAFF

It was a cool, crisp spring evening, when an undefeated softball team met their match and discovered the taste of defeat last week.

The Marine/Navy Detachment Phantoms rallied in their final at bat to come back and defeat Company A, 305th Military Intelligence Battalion, 26-24, April 14 at Pauley Field.

Going into the game 305th had a 4-0 record versus the Phantoms 1-1 record. But, Phantoms coach Brian Mullis seemed confident when talking about his team's goals before the game.

"We're going to win," Mullis said. "We don't want to get hurt because we're old and we don't have a lot of depth."

"We like to win, but we like to have fun, too."

On the other side, the undefeated 305th's coach Jose Navarro also displayed a little pre-game bravado. He said, "Win, by all costs."

Navarro was equally optimistic about 305th's playoff hopes.

He said, "This is the best team I've had so far. We're four and zero so far. We practice three times a week. It is making us the team we are. We wouldn't be doing as good as we are without the three days [of practice]."

The Phantoms started collecting runs in their half of the first inning, led by leadoff hitter Alec James, who legged out an infield single. They ended the top of the first with a 6-0 cushion.

In the bottom of the first,

305th put four runs on the board to creep closer, 6-4.

The Phantoms tacked on 10 more runs in the top half of the second, to bolt ahead 16-4. But, 305th showed their mettle by closing the gap in their half of the second to 16-10.

The momentum changed in the third inning as the Phantoms

Getting dirty, making a difference

Buena High School students from Fort Huachuca and Sierra Vista spruced up the school grounds as part of National Youth Service Day, April 16 to 18.

NYSD is time set aside for the youth of this nation to show how they too can better this country through their volunteer efforts. This was the 16th annual NYSD and the fifth annual Global Youth Service Day, where millions of youth volunteer in over 100 different countries. The volunteer projects are organized, led and done by the youth.

In keeping with the spirit of NYSD, whose theme is "inspire by example," Kids on the Block contributed their services. Kids on the Block uses puppets to build self esteem and problem solving skills in youngsters. Fort Huachuca teen Alyssa Estrada was a puppeteer in last weekend's festivities. Buena High Students participated on this day to beautify their school. Over 100 students worked on four major projects on the school grounds - a creek bed, gravel walkway, weeding and trash removal. They changed a drain runoff into a stone covered, gravel-lined creek bed. In the parking lot, they picked up the trash and weeded every island. They created a gravel walkway, planted two trees and one bush, picked up trash all along the school and weeded on the side of the school, clearing away several truckloads of trash and weeds. They worked together to contact businesses in the area for donations. Southwest Desert Design donated the two trees and a bush, Wal-Mart donated a $30 gift certificate and Dominoes, Pizza Hut, Coca Cola and Burger King donated food and drink for lunch.

The goal of NYSD is to mobilize, encourage and educate. The students planned, organized, fund raised and executed the projects. This encourages young leaders to step forward and set an example for future generations to follow, and it also educates adults about the good children can accomplish.

Paintball tournament a smash

BY SPC.
MATTHEWE CHLOSTA
SCOUT STAFF

There were the sounds of escalating violence, the crack of gunfire, the shouts of troops giving each other instructions on where to take cover amid the tire towers and haphazard wood structures spread across the bare desert landscape.

But, this wasn't a live fire exercise; it was the Spring Paintball Tournament which raged from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Sportsman's Center. The event was sponsored by Pursuit Marketing Incorporated.

"We try and have them [tournaments] every six months," said Carl Jensen, assistant manager, Sportsman's Center. The purpose of the tournaments are, "to have fun, to get more people to come out and play. For local teams they get a chance to see how good they actually are," he said.

The tournament was a double elimination three-man team competition.

"Points are scored for flag hangs, flag pulls, eliminating [shooting] opponents and the number of players left standing," said Ian Dennis, head referee.

The matches are timed for a

Sterling Glines, top, and Loren Jean maneuver for positions to take out the opposing team in the championship round.

maximum of five minutes, Jensen said. The object is to shoot the opposing team's players while not getting shot yourself as your team advances. If a player gets hit anywhere except on their gun, they are out.

"Any hit that breaks upon you at least a quarter size is good," added Dustin Armstrong, referee.

Each team must try to defend their flag while trying to capture their opponents.

Dennis said the hardest thing about being a referee is that people get intense.

The guns used are measured for their velocity by a chronograph before the competition to make sure they fire paintballs at a speed below the limit of 300 feet per second, Dennis said. That is roughly 200 miles per hour.

"The American Society for Testing and Materials decided that anything [a paintball] shot past three hundred feet per second can break the skin," said Sterling Glines, player, Cool Desert Gaming.

Some of the experienced players in the tournament have been playing since they were very young and have competed on the national and global level.

"I've been playing ten years," Glines said. "I used to shoot trap [here] and they opened a paintball field and I started playing."

His team, Team United, placed fourth in the world competition in November and first in the national amateur division in December, added Glines.

Prizes were awarded for first, second and third place finishes.

The prizes included paintball guns, paint and thermal goggle systems.

The Sportsman's Center offers paintball, and the first Saturday of every month is half-price paintball all day, Jensen said. Anybody from 10 and up can participate in paintball.

"It's a good team building sport," Dennis said.

"Paintball is good for everybody and anybody," Jensen said. "There is a lot more to paintball than most people think there is."

For more information, call Jensen at 533-7085.

David Fox of Company B, 305th takes cover at the paintball tournament on Sunday.

Corey Hale takes a shot at the other team in a championship round. Hale's team came in second overall.

Winding Road

Carr house offers family getaway

BY JOAN VASEY
MEDIA RELATIONS SPECIALIST

With gas and food prices on the rise, many families on a budget look for ways to plan family day trips at little or no cost. On the east side of the Huachuca Mountains in nearby Carr Canyon, there's a little known gem of a getaway opportunity in the form of a visitor center and nature trail. Special programs are offered, too. It's a perfect location for families to spend the greater part of the day taking a short hike, sharing a picnic lunch, exploring the visitor center, and enjoying a nature-oriented program all for the cost of about a gallon of gas.

The Carr House, formerly a family home built in 1939, was acquired during the 1970s by the Coronado National Forest as part of a land exchange. Although the building once housed Forest Service employees, it gradually fell into disuse. In the late 1990s, a volunteer group formed and decided to tackle the project of converting the building into a visitor and educational center. After thousands of labor-intensive volunteer hours of restoration work, the house opened to visitors a few years ago. The Friends of the Huachuca Mountains also assisted the Sierra Vista Ranger District, Coronado National Forest in construction of a one-sixth mile nature trail around Carr Meadow, a popular hiking location. The trail is an easy hike with only slight inclines, an attractive feature for families with younger children. Dogs, if leashed, are also welcome. The backdrop of Carr Reef and falls, and the presence of ruins of an old ranch complex in Carr Meadow make for a picturesque and delightful short hike. Benches installed near three wildlife drinkers near the nature trail allow visitors to observe wildlife from a respectful distance.

Picnic tables located outside Carr House invite recreationists to dine al fresco beneath the spreading oaks and observe thirsty hummingbirds and acorn wrens as they sip on nectar at the hummingbird feeders.

Carr House Visitor Information Center will officially reopen Saturdays and Sundays for the spring season on May 2, but the public is invited to attend a special activity planned before opening day.

At 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Kate Scott, Cornell University Ornithology Department's official bluebird ambassador for Arizona will present a special program on these colorful birds. She and other volunteers installed six nesting boxes around the Carr Nature Trail in February. The goal is to entice bluebirds and others to nest in the Carr meadow area. After a short discussion about bluebirds and their habits, Scott will introduce participants to the newly installed nesting boxes, and train those interested on how to monitor nest boxes. This is an opportunity for people, families, and organizations to help gather data for Cornell University.

Carr House officially opens on May 2. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The visitor center will be open on Saturdays and Sundays through October 3. At 1:30 p.m. every second and fourth Sunday, Carr House will feature nature-related programs that are open to the public and offered free of charge.

Two special nighttime programs will also be offered. Brochures listing upcoming events are available at the Carr House or at the Sierra Vista Ranger District, Coronado National Forest office at 5990 South Highway 92, Hereford.

Regular Sunday programs begin on May 9. The gate to the parking lot will open at 11 a.m. Learn "All You Ever Wanted to Know About and Do With Gourds" during the 1:30 p.m. program. Pauline Nickola, Wanda Mealy and Yvonne Jingle, prize-winning gourd growers and artists will discuss how to grow gourds, the many kinds, and painting, decorating and carving techniques.

On May 23, Gretchen Kent, National Environmental Policy Act coordinator for Fort Huachuca will describe the water and resources conservation efforts in the Huachuca Mountains' "sky islands."

FOHM volunteers offer bird walks on the third Saturday of each month through September. Walks are free and open to the public. Birders will meet at 7 a.m. in the Carr House parking lot.

The Carr House is located approximately seven miles south of Sierra Vista. Take Highway 92 and turn right (west) on Carr Canyon Road. Continue on for approximately 2.4 miles. The pavement ends at the forest boundary, but the dirt road is suitable for passenger vehicles. Turn left where the road forks to enter the parking lot area.

The FOHM maintain and operate Carr House. FOHM is a non-profit volunteer group that assists the Coronado National Forest, USDA Forest Service in its stewardship of the Huachuca Mountains.

Volunteers support programs that contribute to the conservation, protection and enhancement of the recreational resources found there. In addition to coordinating educational programs, FOHM assists with other projects to enhance public education and recreation experiences in the Huachuca Mountains.

Good dog

ICW wrestler Rick Steiner signed autographs for fans, including Mikey Smith, 6, before Saturday night's matches.

Rick Steiner, 'the Dog Faced Gremlin'

Each week the Time Out section will feature one athlete of the week. The Scout will ask various sports related questions of each week's athlete.

This week's athlete of the week is ICW wrestler Rick Steiner aka 'the Dog Faced Gremlin' who competed Saturday at Barnes Field House.

What is your favorite sport?
 "College football."

Why is that your favorite sport?
 "I went to the University of Michigan. College football is still a pure sport. They always keep it interesting.
 On any given day, anybody can beat anybody."

Bad dog

Matched against 'GQ Gallo', Steiner wrestled as 'the Dog Faced Gremlin' and clutched victory in his jaws with a spectacular last second pin.

Phoenix, said, "I play what is called, a brutal tune."

He was a last minute replacement after another Department of Defense sponsored wrestling tour through Alaska was cancelled.

"I've done shows with Armed Forces Entertainment," the Honky Tonk Man said.

"Everywhere I go for the military, the people are so happy, so nice and so good to us. They enjoy the show we put on. We bring a smile to their face and that is so important because it can be a grind sometimes."

His message to the members of the military was, "keep up the good work."

Other matches included rising stars Triple X Lt against Killer Kris Kole; the Hawaiian Lion defeated Antoniometre; female wrestler Kharma defeated Lady Satan and a tag team match, where the Funny Clowns defeated the Outlaws.

ICW promoter Henry Hubbard summed up the fun filled night best, he said, "I feel great about tonight. We're serving a great purpose, entertaining the families left behind."

were only able to push one run across the plate, to make their lead 17-10 going into 305th's next at bat.

Shaun Woods led off the bottom of the third with an infield home run for 305th. With their bats warmed up, 305th scored nine more runs to take the lead over the Phantoms, 20-17.

Again, the Phantoms only scored one run in the top of the fourth, while 305th added three runs in the bottom half of the inning to push their lead out to 23-19.

The Phantoms never quit and positive attitude came to the surface in the top half of the final and fifth inning. Led by Mike Ty's savvy hitting and base running, they scrambled for seven runs and a small, 26-23 lead, heading into the bottom of the fifth.

Ralph Dubois, 305th, tried in vain to rally his team, but they were only able to scratch out one more run.

Final score, Phantoms 26, Company A, 305th MI Bn.24.

Reactions by both coaches after the game were circumspect, but still self-assured.

"We feel great," Mullis said. "We had a hard time with big innings. None of us played together before. We had a good shot to take the lead after the big innings."

"The win brings us closer to the top, in the mix," Mullis said. "We can play with any team we know that."

"We played a good game," Navarro said. "Some mistakes were made, but we fixed them and we got the game going. Our experimenting probably cost us the game. We switched out pitchers and outfielders to broaden our horizons."

"We're going to work harder," Navarro said. "Now we know how it feels [to lose] and we don't want to feel it again. Our chances for the playoffs are still outstanding."
